Appendix P:

Summary of Properties at the West End of Broad Beach including Coastal Protective Structures and Wastewater Treatment Systems

This appendix catalogues all 28 properties (located on 29 parcels) at the west end of Broad Beach that are not protected by the 2010 emergency revetment. Information provided for each property includes the address, assessor parcel number(s), type of wastewater treatment system, type of coastal protection structure, permitting status of coastal protection structure, and an assessment of whether or not the property is effectively protected or remains threatened by coastal processes. The assessment of efficacy of coastal protection structures is based on a visual analysis of each structure, taking into consideration the height and stability of the structure. For instance, properties with concrete seawalls showing signs of aging, such as cracks or other wear, were considered to be threatened while properties with significant engineered solutions, such as newly designed and installed seawalls and/or pilings, were considered to be protected. Because protection of onsite wastewater treatment systems (OWTS) is an important consideration in coastal protection, this summary includes information about each property’s wastewater treatment system: whether the property is using an OWTS (designated as “OWTS”) or is supported by the Trancas Creek Wastewater Treatment District (designated as “Sewer”). For properties using OWTSs, the location of the system is also noted, with “landward” and “seaward” indicating where the system is located relative to the primary structure on the property. The properties are catalogued from the first home that is not fully protected by the 2010 emergency revetment at 31350 Broad Beach to the most westerly property of the Broad Beach Geological Hazard Abatement District (BBGHAD) at 6525 Point Lechuza Drive (see Table 1: Catalogue of West-End Properties and Table 2: Summary of West End Properties).

Summary:

In total there are 28 properties on 29 parcels at the west end that are not protected by the 2010 emergency revetment; one of the properties is located on a double lot and one of the properties is undeveloped. Of these properties, 10 are either protected by coastal protection structures or supported by pilings which are properly engineered and structurally sound, while the remaining 18 remain threatened by coastal processes. The bluffs currently provide some level of protection to the 6 properties that are located above the cove; however, the bluffs are also susceptible to erosion due to wave attack and these properties are therefore threatened. There are 5 properties that have OWTs and are threatened by coastal processes; however, all of these properties have their OWTs located on the landward side of the primary structure. The only OWT that is located on the seaward side of a primary structure is at 31368 Broad Beach Road. This property is protected by a large seawall and is not considered to be highly threatened by coastal processes. For a summary of the west-end properties, see Table 2: Summary of West End Properties.
