REVIEW AND MODIFICATION OF REGULATIONS
IN TITLE 2, DIVISION 3, CHAPTER 1,
ARTICLES 1, 2, 2.1, 2.5, 5, 6 and 9

Pursuant to the Commission's authorization of January 26, 1981, (Minute Item No. 38) and in compliance with AB 1111 (Government Code Section 11340, et seq.), staff has conducted a review of the Commission's surface-use regulations. In keeping with the spirit and intent of AB 1111, staff proposed substantial changes, and in some cases, outright repeal of some of the existing regulations. Notice of the proposed changes was published in the Notice Register on April 1, 1981. Notices were also published in major regional newspapers and mailed to persons who had expressed interest. Public hearings on the proposals were held in San Francisco, Sacramento and Long Beach on May 19, 20 and 21.

The purpose of these hearings was to provide the public with ample opportunity to make statements, contentions or arguments, both oral and written, regarding the proposed changes. No persons appeared at the public hearings to offer comments in opposition to the proposals.

A summary of the process called a "Final Statement of Reasons" is attached hereto as Exhibit "B" and by reference made a part hereof.

The Final Statement of Reasons summarizes two letters of comment received on the proposals. These letters from McCutchen, Black, Verleger and Shea, representing the Western Oil and Gas Association (WOGA) and Exxon Company U.S.A., are included herein by reference and are on file in the principal office of the Commission. The Final Statement of Reasons also includes responses to these comments together with support for why the Commission rejected those portions of the comments not resulting in changes to the regulations.

Based upon the materials contained in the rule-making file, together with comments received during the public hearing process, staff believes that the regulations proposed for adoption meet the statutory requirements of "necessity", "authority", "clarity", "consistency" and "reference".

set forth in the statutes (G.C. Section 11349.1). Staff of the Commission has determined that the existing regulations (listed above) do not currently meet the statutory standards. Staff has therefore conducted certain analyses and studies of the regulations and has proposed certain changes and in some instances repeal of existing regulations. In arriving at its proposed modifications/repealers, the staff has conducted surveys of other large land managing entities including the major Ports and Harbors, and others.

Article 1 is being modified to reflect the general leasing requirements of the Commission. The intent of this Article is to set forth in brief form the minimum and typical requirements for use of State land and activities involving such land.

In arriving at the proposed changes in rental rates (Article 2), the Commission's staff has relied on interviews with other large public land holders, and a staff update of two consultant reports prepared for the Commission in the mid 1970's relative to rental rates of return, in addition to other materials available.

The volumetric rental set forth in this article is the subject of litigation in Western Oil and Gas Association, et al. v. Cory, et al., U.S. D.C. (E.D. Cal.), No. CIV S-76-513. However, the California Court of Appeal in 105 Cal. App. 3d, at pg. 554 has found the volumetric rental regulations both lawful and reasonably applied. The proposed new Article 2 modifies the language relating to volumetric rental but not the underlying principle.

In repealing Article 2.5 (Salvage) the staff has reviewed the history of salvage operations on State lands and finds that there is no necessity for a separate regulation governing salvage on State lands. A general statement on salvage permits and rental rates is included in new Article 2.

In repealing Article 5 (Sale of School and Swamp and Overflowed lands) the Commission's staff has again looked at the necessity for the existing regulation and found that since a general moratorium exists on the sale of such lands, the existing Article should be repealed. In its place a new Article 2.1 is proposed which generally sets forth the restrictions on sale of school lands and prescribes general rules for the sale of timber.

Article 6 has been repealed because the procedures for handling the sale of vacant U.S. lands is substantially set forth in the statutes.

Article 9 is being modified to reflect the type of review the Commission feels is contemplated by P.R.C.

6702(b). Application requirements are being removed from the Article and will be set forth in a form as prescribed by Government Code Section 65940 et. seq.

On April 1, 1981, notice of proposed changes to the Commission's Administrative Regulations was published in the Notice Register. Concurrently notice was published in the Sacramento Union, the San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner and the Los Angeles Times. Notice was also mailed to those persons who indicated interest in the Commission's land use regulations (In excess of 200+ persons). In accordance with the published notice, hearings were held in San Francisco on Tuesday, May 19, 1981, at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m.; Sacramento on Wednesday, May 20, 1981, at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m.; and on Thursday, May 21, 1981, in Long Beach at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. No persons appeared at the hearings to offer comments regarding opposition to the proposed regulation changes.

The notice provided that written comments would be received by the Commission until May 29, 1981, in order to be considered in the rule-making record. The Commission received only one set of comments within the allowed comment period from McCuthen, Black, Verleger and Shea - on behalf of its client, the Western Oil and Gas Association (WOGA).

The Western Oil and Gas Association (WOGA) submitted a statement which contends that the Commission's regulations authorizing rentals based upon the volume of commodities passing over the leased land do not meet the following criteria of Government Code Section 11349: authority and reference (subds. (b) and (e)), consistency (subd. (d)), and necessity (subd. (a)). The contentions in the WOGA statement have been the subject of two court cases brought by WOGA and nine oil companies against the Commission, one action in State court and the other in federal district court. The Commission has prevailed in the State court case, which resolved adversely to WOGA most of the issues that are raised in its statement. The issues of federal constitutional law raised by WOGA are still pending in the federal court case. The arguments raised in the WOGA statement are not well-taken for the reasons set forth below.

A. Authority and Reference.

WOGA argues that the Commission has no authority to authorize collection of rent based upon volume, and that Section 6503 of the Public Resources Code limits the Commission to a flat annual rent that is a percentage of appraised fee value. This was precisely the issue that WOGA argued, unsuccessfully, before the State courts. After the superior court had ruled in the Commission's favor, WOGA appealed. The California Court of Appeal phrased the issue as follows: "(D)id the agency act within the scope of its delegated authority . . .?" (Western Oil and Gas Association, et al. v. State Lands Commission (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 554, 562 ) The Court found for the Commission on this issue, specifically noting that, under Public Resources Code Sections 6301 and 6501.2, the Commission has the power to lease lands "upon terms and conditions it deems in the best interests of the State" (id., at pp. 557, 563), and that the Commission "is also empowered to make and enforce all reasonable and proper rules and regulations to carry out its responsibilities," citing Public Resources Code Section 6108 (id., at p. 557). In short, this contention has been rejected by the courts.

B. Consistency.

WOGA's argument on this point refers to the alleged infirmity of the Commission's volumetric regulations on several federal constitutional grounds. These issues are presently before the federal district court in Sacramento. The case will eventually result in a final judgment that is binding on both WOGA and the Commission. The Commission's legal position is fully set forth its brief that is on file in the principal office of the Commission (also a part of this rule-making file) and entitled, "Defendants' (1) Opening Brief in Support of Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment, (2) Brief in Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment, (3) Supporting Affidavits."

MINUTE PAGE	1792

WOGA argues in the litigation (1) that volumetric rental is a "tax" that is invalid under the import-export clause and the prohibition against duties of tonnage, and (2) that volumetric rental is per se, "unreasonable" and therefore an unreasonable burden on interstate and foreign commerce in violation of the commerce clause.

The Commission's response on the first point is that volumetric charges derived from the State's proprietary position as an owner of land and are rent for discrete parcels of State land, not taxes imposed by virtue of the State's general sovereign power to tax, unrelated to its ownership of property. The California Court of Appeal confirmed that when the State leases trust lands, "it is exercising a proprietary function . . . ." (Western Oil & Gas Association, et al. v. State Lands Commission, supra, 105 Cal. App. 3d at p. 566.)

On the second point, the Court of Appeal specifically determined that volumetric rentals were a reasonable means of collection rent. (Id., at p. 565.) If such rents are reasonable for lessees engaged in intrastate commerce, they are equally reasonable for those engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. WOGA's argument is not well-taken here either.

C. Necessity.

WOGA argues that volumetric rents are not necessary because "less burdensome" rental modes (costing WOGA members less rent) are available to the Commission. The Commission successfully argued before the California Court of Appeal that the State is under no duty, in renting its land, to subsidize the oil companies by limiting itself to only one of the rental modes that are in use by public and private lessors generally (i.e., flat annual rents that are a percentage of appraised fee value). The seven-volume administrative record (also a part of this rule-making file) compiled by the Commission in the course of enacting the regulations amply establishes that volumetric rental is commonly employed in ground leases (1) by both private and public lessors, (2) as to improved and unimproved land, and (3) as to upland property and tide and submerged lands. In fact, volumetric rentals are employed by WOGA's member oil companies themselves in the form of the "gallonage" rentals that they charge their service station lessees. Volumetric rentals are a common and reasonable rental mode used in the rental market generally. The California Court of Appeal so determined in Western Oil & Gas Association, et al. v. State Lands Commission (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 554. The Court asked itself, "(W)as the agency action reasonable? (Id., at p. 562.) It concluded that it was.

In summary, the greatest portion of the arguments raised by WOGA in its statement have already been rejected by the courts. The Commission is confident that WOGA's federal constitutional arguments will be rejected as well. The Commission has considered the WOGA statement and rejected the considerations that it raises for the reasons set forth. Exxon Company, U.S.A. submitted comments on Articles 1 and 2 of the Commission's regulations generally dealing with lease/permit administration. Exxon's comments indicated support for the Commission's effort in complying with the spirit and intent of AB 1111 and offered specific comments as detailed below:

Article 1, Section 1907: Exxon believes . . . "this language should be revised to remain consistent with existing statutory and regulatory provisions." They cite Section 6829(c) of the P.R.C. as declarative of the scope and type of liability provisions appropriate for oil and gas leases.

Section 6829 (P.R.C.) reads: "Every oil and gas lease executed under this chapter shall include the following: (a) . . . (b) . . . (c) Provisions specifying methods of operation and standard requirements for carrying on operations in proper and workmanlike manner; the prevention of waste; the protection of the safety and health of workmen; and the liability of the lessee for personal injuries and

Our reading of this provision does not indicate the "scope" and "type" of liability contemplated by the legislature. It merely states that each oil and gas lease shall have provisions specifying the lessee's liability for personal injuries and property damage.

The Commission, in issuing oil and gas leases, must take into consideration the relative risk of the operations in order to determine acceptable limits of liability. We do not feel that Section 1907 gives the Commission "greater latitude than contemplated by pertinent provisions of the Public Resources Code," as suggested by Exxon.

In addition, Article 1 applies to leasing/permitting activities of the Commission, generally. Article 3, Section 2100 et seq. discusses the issuing of oil and gas leases and exploration permits together with a discussion of indemnification of the State (2100 (f)(3).)

We feel that the Commission must have the ability to determine on a case-by-case basis the need for, type and scope of insurance required for the various operations conducted on State lands. In no way is the Commission exceeding its statutory authority in this regard.

Article 2, Section 2000(e):

Exxon states that current Section 2000(e) of Article 2 provides adequate alternatives for applicants to meet liability and/or bond requirements but that proposed Section 1907 is more restrictive and should be revised to permit alternative methods of satisfying liability requirements.

As set forth in Section 2000(a), the provisions of Article 2 apply only to surface-use leases and permits and not to other types of leasing/permitting activities of the Commission. It was our attempt in proposing Section 1907 in Article 1 to have a general statement that applicants for any type of lease or permit from the Commission may be required to obtain liability insurance to protect the State from possible loss. Section 1907 is a broad statement that allows discretion in its use and in the method an applicant may choose to meet the requirements. For instance, many Commission lessees choose to "self-insure". It is intended to allow Commission lessees broad alternatives in meeting insurance and bond requirements (see proposed Section 1906).

Article 1, Section 1909 (a)(2): Exxon states that this section is unclear and should be clarified. It argues that current Section 1908 (bidding procedures) is limited to when the law or other regulations require that an award be made to the highest bidder. We agree. We also agree that it was our purpose to combine situations encompassed by existing Section 1908 with other types of activities that might require a low bid.

The process used by the Commission in advertising a notice of intent to receive bids and of course, the bid package, contain the express terms of the offering. We do not feel that it is necessary to list all of the items that would be included in the notice nor in the bid package; however, we felt that a listing of the general items would suffice. To date, we have not experienced a problem with bidders knowing whether to submit a high or low bid on a noticed offering.

Article 1, Section 1909(c): Exxon requests that the word "reasonable" be added between the words "all" and expenses. We agree to the change. The designation should be "1909 b". Exxon suggests that Section 1909(c) should be revised to reflect the provisions of P.R.C. 6218. P.R.C. Section 6218 reads:

"The Commission may charge and collect reasonable fees for services performed by it, not exceeding the actual cost to the State of such services.

In any case where the Commission, either pursuant to law or rule of the Commission, requires the publication of advertisements for bids or the publication of any notice in connection with the sale or leasing of State lands, the Commission may, by rule, require that the cost of such publication be advanced by any applicant or bidder and be paid by the successful applicant or bidder."

We feel that proposed Section 1909(c) (now changed to "(b)") is expressly interpretive of PRC 6218 and many other sections of the code that allow the Commission to charge fees and recover expenses for services rendered. To merely repeat Section 6218 of the PRC would be violative of the spirit and intent of current rule-making procedures.

Article 2, Section 2002(a): Exxon states that "pipelines" are included within both "Industrial" and "Right of Way" lease category and that the section should be clarified to indicate what pipelines are encompassed by each use category. Proposed Section 2000(b) allows the Commission to have broad discretion in determining which category of leases applicants may fall within. Inasmuch as it is virtually impossible to list the types of different uses of State lands that may include pipelines, it was necessary to give the Commission broad authority. Generally, if a pipeline is part of a greater or more intense use of a State parcel such as a marine terminal, it would be included in the "Industrial" lease category. If the State property were only used for a pipeline crossing, it would fall within the right of way category. In any event, the rental distinction between the two categories is minimal -- See 2003(a)(2) and 2003(a)(3).

The change in language from current Section 2000(a)(1)(B) was done for the purpose of utilizing more commonly used language. The Use of "Art" words and jargon is one of principal purposes for rewriting the regulations. We do not feel that a change in this instance is necessary.

Article 2, Section 2003: Exxon argues that changes in rental rates during the AB 1111 review is not appropriate nor did the Statement of Reasons fairly apprise the public of such change. We disagree. The Commission's Plan for review approved by OAL contemplated changes to the regulation concurrently with the AB 1111 review. The Commission notice of the proposed changes clearly states that all the regulations regarding surface use (Articles 1, 2, 2.1, 2.5, 5, 6 & 9) were either being repealed outright or repealed with adoption of a new replacement article. The Statement of Reasons clearly sets forth why the staff was proposing the changes and the studies and other data relied upon in support of the proposed changes.

Exxon was notified of the proposed changes early in April of 1981 and still could not meet the final filing date for receipt of written comments (May 29, 1981). We believe, as evidenced by the six public hearings held on this matter, that the public had more than adequate opportunity to participate in this process.

Article 2, Section 2004: Exxon believes that the proposed changes contain restrictions not now contained in Section 2003. It says further that the Commission has provided no reason why the current standard (Section 2003) is no longer adequate or appropriate.

The maximum term of leases and permits issued by the Commission has not changed in proposed Section 2004 from current 2003. The Commission has merely added to its regulations a statement of its current leasing practices. The California Court of Appeal in 105 Cal. App. 3d at p. 556, 557 found that in exercise of the jus privitum (the normal right to sell or lease something owned) the State may negotiate and contract as does any other person. The Commission is merely exercising its prerogative in this regard.

In preparation for the proposed regulation changes, the staff conducted research and surveys of other large land administering entities and concluded that prudent land management practices dictate that leases be let for no longer time than is necessary to accomplish the intended use including the lessee's ability to amortize its investment in the property. This practice is common to all types of land leasing situations, not just those of the State Lands Commission.

In light of today's financial market, where financing is often limited to 5 or 10 years, it is especially important that the total lease/development project be examined. In addition, future public needs for these lands may be paramount to current uses.

It appears altogether fitting that private uses of public-owned lands be limited in duration to the least amount of time commensurate with the intended use.
